

THE ONLY OFFICIAL SOURCE

P.O. Box 97043 Redmond, WA 98073-9743

CHANGE SERVICE REQUESTED

PRSRT STD U.S. POSTAGE PAID NINTENDO OF AMERICA INC.

ITS HERE

GAME BOY

Y.

"The Poke-Mon (pronounced 'poh-kay-mon,' short for Pocket Monsters) phenomenon in Japan must be seen to be believed." - Volume 98

1992

April—Groundbreaking Super NES title, The Legend of Zelda: A Link to the Past, debuts.

November—Super Mario Land 2 marks the debut of Wario.

1993

June—Battletoads & Double Dragon is the last NES game to appear on the cover.

July—Nintendo Power celebrates a milestone with its 50th issue.

1994

May—Nintendo Power Source goes online.

November—Donkey Kong Country becomes the first Super NES game to feature primarily computermodeled graphics.

1995

August—Virtual Boy, a 3-D game system that uses vector graphics, is released.

November—Nintendo Power celebrates 10 years of the NES. The Pak Watch column for the May/June 1989 issue let Nintendo Power readers know for the first time that a revo-for the first time that a revolution in portable gaming was about to begin. Game Boy was on its way. Of course, that was just the beginning of Game Boy coverage in Nintendo Power. In 1990, Game Boy reviews became a regular part of the magazine, and in August 1001 (Volume 27), Nintendo Power featured a Game Boy game on the cover for the first time-Mega Man in Dr. Wilv's Revenge, Volume 60 brought the first mention of Super Game Boy, a Super NES accessory that allows players to play Game Boy games with their Super NES, Volume 68 broke the news about the release of Virtual Boy. Volume 98 featured the first look at what would become a boon for the Game Boy system and Nintendo-Pokémon. Nintendo Power first mentioned the Game Boy Color in Volume 113 (October 1998) and presented an article about the breakthrough system in Volume 114 (November 1998). The first official word on Game Boy Advance appeared in Volume 132, published May 2000. Game Boy, Game Boy Color, Virtual Boy and Game Boy Advance have accounted for a total of 15 Nintendo Power covers. Game Boy Advance is now the subject of its own quarterly publication, created by the designers and writers of Nintendo Power. The third issue of Nintendo Power Advance will be published later this year.

THE DISH ON CELEBRITY PROFILES

43 to make way for more game-related material.

From 1988 through 1992, nearly every issue of Nintendo Power included a question and answer session with a Nintendo game fan, who also happened to be a celebrity. Celebrity Profile (a. ka. Celebrity Player Profile) started with Kirk Cameron (of "Growing Pains" Jame) in Volume 1. Other featured celebrities ing Pains" Jame) in Volume 1. Other featured celebrities priority of the Volume 1. Tim Allen, Jay Leno, Ken Griffey Jr., Bart Simpson and Will Smith. Two separate Celebrity Profiles featured attors from "Star Trek: The Next Generation"—Michael Dorn and Will Whaton. The Celebrity Profile section ended with Volume